

Procedure for Faculty In-Load Work Outside of the College of Education

Procedure Title: Faculty In-Load Work Outside of the College of Education

Department Responsible: College of Education

Contact Person and Title: Department Chair and College Dean

Procedure: The procedure outlines the compensation due to the College if faculty teach outside of the College.

Faculty members who take on in-load teaching or service appointments attached to a department outside of the College or to another university, must compensate the College for the proportion of the salary that is lost to the College. All full-time in-load teaching assignments are counted at a rate of 10% of salary per 3-hour course. Any in-load teaching arrangements made with the Office of Teaching Innovation and Digital Education (OTIDE), however, are compensated to the College at a rate developed by the Provost's Office. Work allocation percentages for service projects are open to negotiation.
